Appeals to All.

Col. Mixson is preparing an appeal to the teachers, lawyers, doctors, preachers and other professional men of the state asking their assistance in the campaign for membership. In a letter which will shortly go to them he declares that the movement "affects vitally every person in the south."

"The South," says Col. Mixson, "is dependent on the farmer. When adversity hits the farmer it hits the whole south. None of us have forgotten the gloomy days of the fall of 1914 when the cotton market utterly collapsed, with the south appealed to the north to buy cotton at 10 cents a pound as an act of charity. Business was stagnated. Thousands upon thousands of men in the business world were thrown out of employment. Thousands suffered heavy cuts in salaries. Professional men were unable to collect what was due them. There was hardly a man, woman or child in the south but that was affected. Conditions did not improve a particle until the cotton market became staple."

"It seems to me with the experience of 1914 fresh in our minds all of our people would be quick to see the necessity of everybody striving to co-operate with the farms in any move-

COONSKIN BUSINESS THRIVES.

Mr. Muldrow Writes Interestingly of a Leading Industry in North Carolina City.

Fair Bluff, Dec. 15, 1919. Dear Mr. Herald:—This old town is waking up out of its more than Rip Van Winkle sleep.

The Baptist folk are going to build a brick church house modern in every detail and have also gone over the top of their assessment in the seventy-five million drive.

Also the Masonic fraternity are in earnest and will soon have underway a splendid brick building with nicely equipped lodge with store and offices beneath.

Everybody is on the job. The merchants, bankers, cobblers, fishermen, and loafers, strong husky youths that walk the streets and air themselves about the soda fountain. And last but not least the coon hunters, who seem to be determined to make a second John Jacob Astor out of the town's Highcockalorum, Coonskin King, and its Mayor. Hundreds and hundreds of the ringtail skins interspersed with mink, possums and other find their way to the Mayor's headquarters. No. 1 skins of the coon variety sell from $5.00 to $7.00 each, possums large, $4, otter $25.00 and where they all come from only the coon hunters know. This is a up pickaninny business as the amount realized by the hunters amounts to many thousand dollars, and the mayor as middleman in the business.

Great preparations are going on for Xmas. Fruit and fire crackers galore. The yelp of some unfortunate turkey in the back yard of the town's opulent citizens reminds you that a joyous feast will be furnished by the sad old gobbler when his head is severed from the body, dressed, baked and garnished with sauce and cranberry jelly for the family that paid 35c per pound live weight for so costly a luxury.

Not within the domains of the old North State can be found a more contented class of Tar Heels. They recognize this town and a few miles outside as strictly their world. The great big pulsing throbbing universe seems far away from them. Strikes and the unrest throughout civilization gives them no loss of sleep.

With best wishes for you and the readers of the Herald. A merry and happy Xmas for each one.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 50c per bottle.

"The teachers, the lawyers, the preachers, the doctors, all are interested in the betterment of the rural life of the south. They should and I believe, will co-operate in this great movement for the organization of the American Cotton Association of which the South Carolina Cotton Association is a branch.
